Blue Hill Presents at 2015 AFCOM Mid-Atlantic Symposium in Philadelphia Oct 15

Blue Hill is pleased to announce that Mr. Tom Laudati, Chief Technology Officer of Blue Hill Data Services, is a presenter at the 2015 AFCOM Mid-Atlantic Symposium in Philadelphia, October 15th at the Sheraton Valley Forge in Philadelphia.

Mr. Tom Laudati will lead a discussion entitled: “Security Strategies in Evaluating Data Services.” Organizations are looking to minimize risk by opting to divest themselves of traditional Data Centers and engage Hosting Services. Tom will discuss best guidelines to ensure these security risks are alleviated when choosing a services provider. Tom has 30+ years of data center management expertise and outsourcing experience, and leads a team of professionals who have managed hundreds of data center transitions/migrations. He and his team have achieved a 100% success rate for mainframe, mid-range and open systems migrations, utilizing a proven methodology and well-developed set of tools, in providing fully managed services to 100+ customers nationwide.

This year’s theme of the AFCOM Symposium is “Take Back Control of your Enterprise.” It allows participants to meet with experts and learn industry best practices, for IT and Data Center management, Security Officers, DR coordinators, Engineers, Building Managers, DR Professionals, and Facilities Management Professionals.

“Many of our clients are AFCOM members in chapters throughout the United States. Supporting Donna Jacobs, who leads the Mid-Atlantic chapter of AFCOM, helps solidify our commitment to our customers, partners and constituents in the greater Philadelphia area.

“Our most recent announcement was about the opening of our new offices at 1500 Walnut Street in Philadelphia, to support our growing number of customers who are headquartered in this area. We are committed to our community involvement as we continue to grow our IT managed hosting and colocation businesses.”
